

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

January 9 - February 9, 2023

PARTICIPANT BIOS

Bandana Adhikari

Bandana Adhikari is a junior studying International Business with a Concentration in Entrepreneurship and Innovation, with a Minor in Sustainability. Bandana was born and raised in a small refugee camp in Nepal. She has traveled to several countries and has been exposed to different cultures, market conditions, and cultural norms. Bandana believes she has been building her global brand and offering different, unique perspectives and insights. Her passion is international business because it enables her to solve problems by fusing her unique insights and perspectives with those of a foreign society and culture. By participating in this Bootcamp, Bandana intends to gain more knowledge, enhance her abilities, and benefit the group by sharing her knowledge and experiences with peers.

Faheem Ahmad

Faheem Ahmad is a final-semester Master's in Management student at GWU, with aspirations to take his career international, especially in the Middle East and South Asia regions. Fluent in Urdu and Hindi and elementary-proficient in Arabic and German, Faheem loves authentic cultural connection and positive human interaction with folks from all over the world, something that Washington, DC has offered a rewarding variety of.

This past summer, Faheem completed an internship in Global Trade Policy for Toyota's Washington, DC Government Affairs Office, which broadened his international business interests beyond pure operations and into stakeholder relations, business diplomacy, and the possibility of working for US International Business Councils here in DC.

Before coming to GW, Faheem earned a Bachelor of Science in Economics from the University of Central Florida and worked on an Industrial Engineering team at the United Parcel Service (UPS), reporting operations data for all UPS deliveries in the Florida district.

These diverse experiences have given Faheem a penchant for much of the material we will cover in the NASBITE Certified Global Business Professional Bootcamp, be it global supply chain management, foreign market analysis, trade finance, or general best practices in international business.

Through this Bootcamp and eventual certification, Faheem hopes to achieve a competitive edge as he advances his international business career. Though it will take a good 5-10 hours of effort every week until passing the exam in Spring 2023, Faheem is motivated to put in the hard work and grow as a trade professional through this exciting experience.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

January 9 - February 9, 2023

Anthony Chu

Anthony Chu is a strategic communications professional supporting outreach for the Federal Aviation Administration's multi-year modernization of the U.S. air traffic system. Tony also served on a national forum that advised executives on issues affecting a government workforce, to advance the vision for a work culture representative of the country's diversity. Additionally, he recruited for an air traffic controller development program, which provided opportunities for persons with targeted disabilities to gain aviation knowledge and experience, and co-founded an annual aviation camp in Oakland, California, to encourage youth to explore careers in aerospace and engineering, specially targeted for those who are under-represented in the industry. He previously was an air traffic control specialist and managed daily aerodrome operations that included flight planning and airport procedures. Tony is a native of Northern California who studied journalism, history, and criminal justice at San Francisco State University. He earned two certificates in strategic communications management from Ithaca College and a Master of Science in project management from The George Washington University. He is currently pursuing a Master's in Business Administration. In his spare time, Tony enjoys traveling, learning new things, and supporting the community. He is an emergency medical technician and leads provider with a volunteer fire department in Northern Virginia and previously volunteered with the Travelers Aid program at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport. Tony has lived and traveled extensively in North America, Western Europe, and East Asia.

Jacksen Costa

Jacksen attends West Virginia University. He likes to run, play basketball, and work out. Jacksen plans on graduating in the Spring of 2023 with a BD in global supply chain management. He plans to live in the Washington DC area and find a job related to their field after the summer.

Michael Creedle

Michael Creedle is an International Business Master's Student at George Washington University. After completing his undergrad in Economics in 2016, he went on to work in the Mortgage Servicing field. Specifically, in Default Loss Accounting, in which he would create a loss timeline and accounting matrix on a defaulted property. He decided to start his master's in 2020. He recently studied abroad in South Korea and loves to travel. He speaks a little Spanish, Korean, and Japanese. He is an avid tinkerer, building and fixing his computers. He also likes to perform comedy, sparingly since the pandemic. He has been performing comedy since 2018, on and off. He looks forward to learning and working with the staff, professors, and other fellow students.

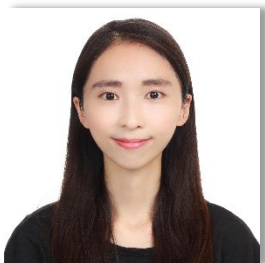

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

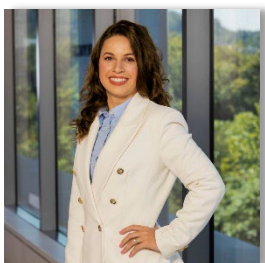

Le Thi Huyen Trang Doan

Trang is currently a Master of Science candidate at The George Washington University, School of Business, specializing in Project Management (STEM-designated). She is a purpose-driven project leader with experience in both the nonprofit and private sectors. In the nonprofit sector, she is the founder of two social projects: Code for Kids and SheGrows. Code for Kids, rapidly growing into a coding school start-up, is dedicated to equipping unprivileged children and young adults with coding skills. She grows, on the other hand, is a community built to foster the development of Vietnamese young women with more than a thousand active members. Both projects are making positive impacts on the change of Vietnamese women and children and have the potential for bigger and cross-border growth. In the private sector, she used to work for Procter and Gamble as a project leader and she was the youngest team leader managing Product Marketing under Corporate Strategy Management in FWD Vietnam.

YiLan Fang

Yi-Lan Fang is an M.A. student in the international affairs program at George Washington University. From 2020 to 2022, she served as a Legislative Assistant in the Legislative Yuan, Republic of China (Taiwan).

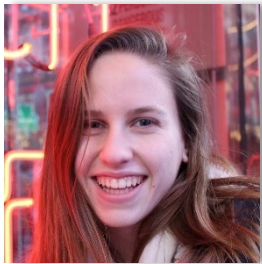

Jessica Fernandes da Luz

Jessica Fernandes da Luz has 14 years of experience and worked with importing and exporting, with good abilities for negotiation for national and international freights, new supplier prospects, team, and forwarding agent management. Besides, she has experience in a higher education institution organizing events, supporting ceremonies, administrating routines, managing the executive director's agenda, coordinating meetings and event arrangements, and making travel arrangements.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

January 9 - February 9, 2023

Piper Geffert

Piper Geffert is a sophomore at George Washington University studying International Business and Finance. At GW she is part of the Global Bachelor's Program, where she will embark on two semesters abroad and do an international internship while researching a global issue of her choice throughout her travels. She just finished studying in Belfast, Northern Ireland this past semester. She is interested in international corporations with a focus on their financial department. Finance speaks to her because she is fascinated with the story behind the numbers. For her, international business comes with the excitement of meeting new people and learning about their unique backgrounds. Outside of school she enjoys snowboarding, reading, playing soccer, and theatre, and has recently found a new love for tennis!

Abby Hackman

Abby Hackman is a sophomore pursuing a double major in International Business and Finance at George Washington University. Abby currently serves as a Business Leader Development Program Mentor at the GW School of Business, teaching first-year business students lessons on fundamental professional development topics such as resume writing and career planning. Outside her role as a Mentor, Abby is involved in an array of organizations on campus, including the American Marketing Association, the Commercial Real Estate Network, Compass Impact Investing Advisory Group, GW Women in Business, and the Women's Pre-law Association. By participating in the GW-CIBER International Business Bootcamp, Abby aims to strengthen her familiarity with global markets, international commerce, and trade logistics. In the future, she hopes to apply this knowledge as she pursues a career in international economic law.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

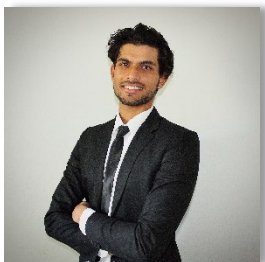

Jeffrey Hackman

For the past 7 years, Jeffrey has lived and worked abroad in Shenzhen, China in the world of international business and trade. Prior to that, he spent 3 years working in the US for a Chinese firm collaborating with US manufacturers. His entire career, since graduating from university, has been in the movement of goods and rendering of services from China to the US. His undergraduate education was in English (focused on writing) and Asian Studies, with the expectation to eventually get into foreign journalism. But, as often happens, his career took a different path. He is currently working as the Director of Project Management for the APAC branch of a multi-national organization in the retail display industry. He is working his way through George Washington University's online MBA program now, with the expectation to graduate in winter 2023. The CGBP is the next step in, and a great addition to, a profession and adult life built with a focus on globalization. He appreciates the opportunity to expand his knowledge base and looks forward to meeting the instructors and other students in the program.

Roger Hunter Jr

Roger Hunter Jr. attends West Virginia University. He is entering his last semester in WVU's Online Executive MBA program. He currently works for a logistics company as a Global Account Executive. His goals and aspirations would be to break into Officer level positions within the next 5 to 10 years of his career. He started his career at the entry-level and worked his way through multiple management positions into his current position in the last 13 years. His energetic and hardworking values correlate to his roles in which he brings success. He holds multiple accolades within his company, and he will continue to achieve on his path to higher leadership. He is an avid golfer, and he received the promotion that brought him across the US from NY to California.

Raj Kharel

Raj Kharel is from Nepal. He is currently a junior with a major in Business and dual concentration on ISTM and International Business, and a minor in Organization Communication. He is currently working at a star restaurant company as a Business system/analytics intern. He loves to travel and play basketball.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

David Lee

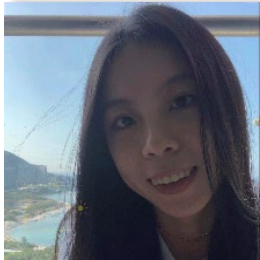

David Lee is a Senior at the George Washington University. He is pursuing a BA in International Affairs with a Minor in International Business. Throughout his undergraduate career, David has had multiple experiences that enhanced his understanding of International Business. During his First Year of University, he studied at the American University of Paris as a George Washington University Paris Scholar. Attending University outside of the United States of America exposed him to different cultures. Upon returning to the United States of America to attend GWU, he decided to pursue a minor in International Business. This allowed him to learn from the excellent IBUS department and understand International Business from an academic perspective. He is also a World Trade Center Institute Albrecht Fellow. He participated in the Global Pathways for Students program, allowing him to interact with Intl. Business professionals and witness how multinational firms operate. He is excited to further enhance his understanding of International Business through the GWU CIBER Bootcamp & better understand the mechanisms of International Trade. He hopes to apply these experiences as he pursues an M.S. in International Business at GWU and a future career in consulting.

Samantha Lee

Samantha Lee was born in New York City, but grew up in Hong Kong. She is a senior at George Washington University studying international affairs with a concentration in Asia and comparative political, social, and economic systems. She is currently the director of the Undergraduate Law Review, and a member of Delta Phi Epsilon, a Foreign Service professional sorority. Outside of her university extracurriculars, she is interning at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation's Corporate Citizenship Center as a program intern and at Finpublica, a start-up non-profit organization that aims to help financial institutions integrate environmental, social, and governance (ESG) considerations into its long-term strategy. In the future, Samantha is interested in attending law school and pursuing Biglaw. In particular, she wants to focus on corporate social responsibility and compliance with increasing international ESG regulations for multinational corporations. Within international corporations, Samantha hopes to specifically focus on the Asia-Pacific region to integrate her experience living and growing up in Hong Kong with her interest in ESG. Other than academics, she enjoys running and dancing ballet. She is training for a half marathon in April!

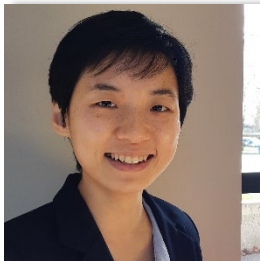

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

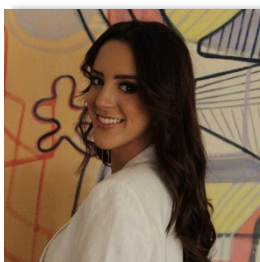

Andrea Li

Andrea Li is a senior at George Washington University majoring in international business. Currently, she is in the process of applying for her master's degree in marketing and thought this Bootcamp would be very helpful for amplifying her experience in this field. Andrea has worked for Beats by Dre in the department of consumer insight. She has also worked as an assistant manager at a startup company in China. Working across different countries and cultures has always been Andrea's passion and motivation. Andrea is very excited to meet everyone and learn a great deal from this program regarding global marketing and business management!

Penny Li

Penny Li is currently a forensic accountant at KPMG in Toronto, Canada, and has been pursuing her Master of Science in Forensic and Fraud Examination at West Virginia University since August of 2022. She is a Kaggle contributor using data to tell stories on topics such as the recent war in Ukraine and market trends. She is also a Substacker, sending bite-sized coding lessons to whoever is interested in advancing their Python and R skills. She has also traveled extensively outside of work during her professional accounting career, including volunteering at an orphanage in Cusco, Peru, and building a library for a rural school in China. She also has experience working at the U.S. Commercial Service in the U.S. Embassy in Canada, in pairing Canadian opportunities with U.S. businesses.

Giovanna Lino

Giovanna is a senior at George Washington University studying International Business and Finance with a minor in Journalism. Giovanna is originally from Brazil, but has also lived in the US, Italy, and Canada. Giovanna has had previous work experience with M&A in Latin America Coverage and with marketing strategies for startups. Giovanna's main interests include working with global strategies for businesses in the consulting practice, and eventually becoming a founder and expanding her own business.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

Gabriel Madison

Gabriel Madison is a third-year student at George Washington University majoring in International Business. Gabriel is originally from Washington, DC, and is eager to be able to participate in this year's GW-CIBER International Business Bootcamp. As the child of an immigrant, Gabriel knows just how significant it can be to view a situation through different cultural lenses. In many ways, Gabriel sees themselves as a product of globalization and recognizes the need to consider different cultural lenses specifically when approaching global commerce. In the business world, Gabriel's interest is peaked when it comes to ESG initiatives, mainly the management side and how these initiatives get actualized. Aside from business, Gabriel is interested in cooking and language learning, as well as nature and immigrant justice advocacy.

Arlene Marshall

Arlene Marshall is a senior at the University of the District of Columbia. Her major is Business Management with concentrations in Marketing and Logistics & International Trade. Her 20-year professional career as a customer service and operations manager relates to international business travel and being employed by a multinational company. Last year, Arlene participated in a Study Abroad course for Design and Innovation in Business at Nottingham Trent University in Nottingham, UK. She is currently an intern at the Department of Commerce, International Trade Administration, Office of Strategy and Engagement. Upon graduation, Arlene plans to pursue an International Trade Specialist or Program Analyst career while obtaining her MBA.

Laura Martin

Laura Martin was born and raised in Boulder, Colorado where she attended high school, college, and graduate school. She attended Colorado College where she earned a degree in Art History and attended law school at the University of Colorado. She has extensive experience in healthcare and political fundraising. She currently attends George Washington University working towards a Healthcare MBA with a focus on Regulatory Affairs. She currently lives in Scottsdale, Arizona with her chocolate lab, Sirius, and plays golf regularly.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

Stephen Mayka

Stephen Mayka is a Finance Major at West Virginia University. He loves to learn, volunteer, and work out. He is from Newburgh, New York. He is a natural leader who operates well in high-stress environments. He plans to seek a job in Corporate Finance after he graduates in 2026.

Alexandria Meuret

Alexandria Meuret is a third-year student at George Mason University pursuing a Bachelor of Science in Economics with a minor in Global Systems. She has been working with the Virginia Small Business Development Center as an International Market Research Associate since October 2022. Through this class, she hopes to be able to learn more and grow her knowledge base. In her spare time, she volunteers as an EMT with Sterling Volunteer Rescue Squad. She is also a member of George Mason's Equestrian team.

Isabel Mirandes

Isabel Mirandes was born and raised in Puerto Rico and moved to Washington D.C. to pursue a bachelor's in Business Administration with a concentration in International Business from George Washington University. Isabel had a diverse upbringing which brought her to grow an appreciation for different cultures, inspiring her to become trilingual by learning French from an early age –already speaking her native Spanish and English fluently. Currently a second-semester Senior with three past internship experiences, the latter of them focusing on the merger and acquisition of a foreign business solutions company, shedding light on an international business career. After graduation, Isabel aspires to work for a multinational organization and apply everything she has learned at GWU, while also gaining skills to be successful in the industry.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

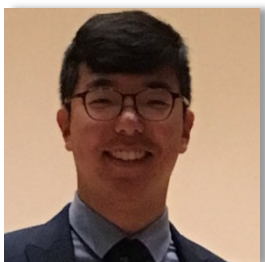

Brianna Moore

Brianna Moore is a student in the George Washington University online MBA program. In 2017, Brianna received her B.A. in International Affairs from Trinity Washington University and graduated with honors. Brianna is currently employed at the Department of Homeland Security where she is regularly exposed to themes and changes in immigration. Brianna plans to use her background in International Affairs, her job experience in immigration, and her business education from GWU to give her a well-rounded approach to launching her career in International Business.

Denzel Ibrahim Mutlaq

Denzel Ibrahim Mutlaq is a business professional from Cleveland, Ohio. He graduated from Ohio University in 2020, studying Economics and Real Estate. Denzel is currently pursuing a Master of Science in Economics from West Virginia University. In his current role as a Technical Consultant, he works on implementing and upgrading event management software for major corporations and higher education institutions throughout the United States. Previously, Denzel worked in healthcare technology as a consultant, implementing Electronic Medical/Health Records for hospitals and clinics around the world, particularly in surgical departments. He has also worked in a variety of industries, including Banking, Real Estate/Property Management, and Insurance. In addition to his professional work, Denzel is an entrepreneur who runs his own skincare product business. He is also in the process of becoming PMP Certified and working towards becoming a project manager. Denzel has always been interested in international business and is excited to gain new skills and broaden his understanding of the global markets.

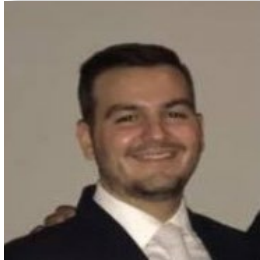

Yukang Park

I am a current Master's in International Security student at George Mason University's Schar School. I served the last couple of years of my life in the South Korean Marine Corps before beginning my educational program, and I currently, work as an international market research associate with the Virginia SBDC and Mason Enterprise Center.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

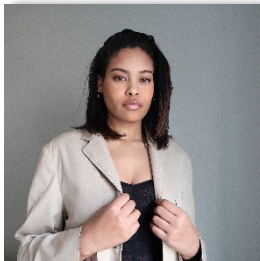

January 9 - February 9, 2023

Ector Perez

Ector F Perez Banuchi was born in Florida and raised in Puerto Rico. He is currently a Tax Senior/Staff Auditor at a local CPA firm, and holds an MBA in Finance. He is also pursuing a Master of Science in Forensic and Fraud Examination from West Virginia University. Once he completes this degree, his goal is to obtain the CPA and CFE certificates and find a job in Forensic Accounting or a role that allows him to use his analytical and investigative skills. In his free time, he enjoys mountain and road biking and practicing Jiu-Jitsu.

Camaren Rogers

Camaren is a graduating senior business management student with a concentration in marketing at The University of the District of Columbia. She has a strong professional attitude toward consulting and globalization. She also has a firm attention to detail and a vigorous analytical mind. She is seeking career opportunities in Marketing, social media, and Consulting.

Allyson Simmons

Allyson Simmons is a rising second-year graduate student at The George Washington University School of Business with a major in International Business and a graduate certificate in global management. She enjoys economic development, and international business strategy and is pursuing her master's degree to become an international trade specialist. Allyson has a love for travel and seeing other cultures from around the world. Before the MSIB program, Allyson was a budget analyst at the Federal Aviation Administration managing government contracts, then a program analyst at the Federal Transit Administration supporting the Office of Budget and Policy, and currently is an analyst at JPI supporting the U.S. Coast Guard and the Research, Development, Testing & Evaluation and Innovation Team. Allyson earned her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration and Bachelor of Arts from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte in 2021.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

January 9 - February 9, 2023

Hayden Sliger

Hayden Sliger is a recent graduate of WVU's John Chambers School of Business & Economics with a degree in Organizational Leadership. He is from Fairmont, West Virginia, and has lived in West Virginia all his life. He is currently working a full-time job as an HR Specialist at the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In this position, he sources candidates to FBI field offices, reads resumes to determine the suitability and negotiates pay. Although he enjoys his job, he plans to continue his education in the Fall of 2023 in London, England.

Specifically, he will be studying Human Resources Management & Organizational Analysis at King's College. His end goal is to earn a doctoral degree in organizational behavior and become a professor of management. Some more facts about him are that he plays in an alternative rock band in Morgantown, loves to read, and is an avid fan of the UFC.

Jack Stein

Jack Stein is a junior at George Washington University studying International Business with a concentration in Chinese. He is originally from New York City, but his family now lives in Glencoe, Illinois. His passion for international business comes from his skills in problem-solving and team-oriented solutions, as well as his interest in learning Chinese and interacting with different cultures. He is excited to participate in the GW-CIBER Bootcamp to improve upon the International Business skills he already has and to learn from guest speakers and professionals.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

January 9 - February 9, 2023

Anna Styer

Anna Styer is set to graduate in 2023. Coming to George Washington University, Anna knew she wanted to study languages, global cultures, international economics, and politics. Anna decided to major in International Affairs and was unsure which field she would go into until the Spring semester of her Junior year when she took Introduction to International Business. Anna fell in love with the field of business and this love was solidified when she took Managing a Multinational Enterprise this past semester. Because Anna has a passion for connecting people, interacting with diverse ideas and cultures, and solving problems, she believes International Business is the perfect field for her and she will be applying for positions in this field when she graduates in Spring 2023. Anna especially hopes to find a job in the energy industry, as this is very relevant for the industries in her home state of Ohio. Her goal is to help local Ohio companies expand internationally. Anna believes she can fully utilize this Bootcamp's material to propel her career in international business. Anna is looking forward to taking the CGBP exam to become more competitive when applying for jobs in the international business/ trade field. She is also excited to network and make friends with the CIBER staff and other students with similar interests and goals during the program. In terms of experience, Anna has taken Introduction to International Business and Managing a Multinational Enterprise at GW. For these classes, Anna wrote cases on the international strategy of Korean beauty companies, Nestle Kit Kat, and Uber. She also concentrated on International Economics as her major and took International Trade at GW. For her internship, Anna worked for her U.S. representative and spent a considerable amount of time speaking with Oil and Gas companies in Ohio and researching their policies and prices as a result of policies by Biden and international factors such as the energy crisis from Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

Lena Syed

Lena Syed is a senior at George Washington University majoring in Business Administration with a concentration in international business and a minor in sustainability. In Spring 2022, Lena expanded her international business education by studying abroad in Paris. She was able to take international business courses from a new perspective, learn French, and familiarize herself with a new culture. In her free time, Lena enjoys trip planning, trying new restaurants, and content creation. In the global business world, Lena is interested in marketing, business development, and ESG business initiatives. Eventually, Lena would love to play a role in sustainable development in developing countries. By participating in this Bootcamp, Lena hopes to contribute meaningful insight from her experiences, gain new knowledge, and learn from others.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

Lynnette Tavoletti

Lynnette Tavoletti is a Property Tax Complex Consultant with Ryan LLC. She handles various aspects of her clients' real and personal property needs, including compliance filings and valuation reviews and appeals, with the goal of liberating them from the burden of being overtaxed, freeing their capital to invest, grow, and thrive. She represents clients in various industries, including steel, utilities, railroads, and food and beverage manufacturing. Previously, Ms. Tavoletti was the Revaluation Supervisor at Industrial Appraisal Company where she gained expertise in fixed asset cost accounting. In that role, she also helped develop processes, procedures, and software that increased efficiencies and resulted in revenue growth. She is a member of the Institute for Professionals in Taxation. Ms. Tavoletti is an MBA student at George Washington University and holds a B.S. in Commerce and Business Administration from the University of Alabama.

Nandini Tivakaran

Nandini Tivakaran is a recent graduate of George Mason University (GMU). She graduated with a B.A. in Economics, summa cum laude, and with a minor in Global Systems. Her coursework focused on international applications of economic theory, such as in trade, in developing economies, and in economies transitioning to a free-market system. Nandini was the Assistant Editor for the George Mason Review (GMR), where she edited 34 multidisciplinary research papers to be published in GMU's annual multidisciplinary undergraduate research journal. During her time at the GMR, she updated the evaluation criteria and trained peer reviewers on how to evaluate the research papers that were submitted for publishing. After graduating from GMU, Nandini completed the 2-Year Vedanta Course at Sandeepany Sadhanalaya in Mumbai, India, where she studied Hindu philosophy and Sanskrit language. There she learned how to critically analyze, synthesize, and make practical the various theories, stories, and compositions found in ancient Sanskrit literature. Having honed these skills of critical analysis, research, and writing at both GMU and at the Vedanta Course, she is eager to apply them in an industry setting. She is particularly excited to gain experience turning technical research about trade data and economic trends into user-friendly and actionable strategies as she begins working as an International Market Research Associate on the Virginia SBDC's International Business Development team.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

Miranda Toler

Miranda Toler is from Southwest Virginia. She is a Health Care Provider Recruiter for Veterans Evaluation Services. She searches for providers in the Midwest that can assist in conducting exams for veterans to get their disability. Prior to this, she was an Account Coordinator and Executive Assistant for Sales and Marketing for a large aluminum and steel manufacturer. She has also worked as a high-volume Recruiter in Talent Acquisition for a large call center before entering the manufacturing industry. She is currently majoring in Business Management at Southwest Virginia Community College. She plans to continue working in similar industries in the future but would prefer to go back to manufacturing or the lighting industry. She finds sales strategies, business plans, and how to run a successful business intriguing. She hopes that this Bootcamp will give her more tools to be even more successful in the business world.

Juan Vidaurre

Juan Vidaurre is originally from Caracas, Venezuela and now lives in the United States. He is currently a senior at George Washington University, where he is studying International Affairs with a minor in International Business. His time at GW has allowed him to cultivate a deep interest in understanding the complexities of the global political landscape and how businesses operate on an international level. As a dedicated and hardworking individual, Juan is eager to use his knowledge and skills to make a positive impact in the world.

Margaret Walker

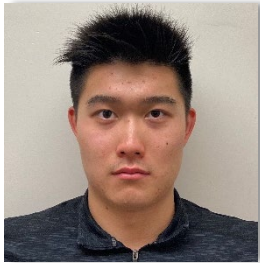

Margaret Walker is a junior at West Virginia University. She is studying Business Management with an emphasis on International Studies. Margaret is from Virginia Beach, Virginia. Currently, she is involved in multiple different extracurriculars. She is Secretary of the Global Business Brigades and has an internship with WVU sustainable development program. Meanwhile, she works as a waitress at Morgantown Brewing Company while continuing her classes and stays involved in Delight Ministries. Margaret loves to stay very involved with her student body and community and hopes to learn a lot from this Bootcamp.

GW-CIBER INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS BOOTCAMP

January 9 - February 9, 2023

Lex Wang

Lex Wang is a newly graduated student at George Washington University majoring in international business and minoring in history. He has worked in the field of customer service, front desk assistance, and project management in both the US and China. After graduating from GWU in December last year, Lex is looking forward to working in the DMV area. He prefers to work in both project management and customer service. Lex is also happy to work as a bridge between China and America in the business world. He speaks English, Chinese, and Cantonese. He was a swimming team member at his high school. HE likes to work out 4-5 times a week. Lex is also good at cooking, especially Cantonese food. He is also enthusiastic about sedan-style naturally aspirated engine cars and especially enjoys the thrill of driving a vehicle. He drove more than 9000 miles in total last year. Lex is also a model car collector and a huge Transformers fan.

Zijin Zhang

Zijin Zhang is a senior studying at the George Washington University School of Business, concentrating on International Business. She has a wealth of working experiences overseas in Singapore, and scaling up business with her multicultural identity is one of my substantial values. Zijin has worked in various industries, such as banking, transportation, and supply chain. She is currently a Product Development & Customer Experience Intern at Amtrak. Upon completing her undergraduate study, she intends to apply for a Master's program in Business Analytics to further extend her knowledge toward a career she desires.